

Lightforth — Sales Playbook 2026

Overview

Lightforth is an AI-powered career platform: Resume Builder, Auto-Apply, Interview Prep, and Interview Copilot. This playbook covers how to position, demo, and close individual job seekers — and organizations buying seats on their behalf — on Lightforth Pro and Premium.

Product Positioning

One-Liner

"Lightforth gets you hired faster — an AI resume that beats the ATS, auto-apply that does the busywork, and a live Copilot that whispers the right answer in your ear during the actual interview."

Value Proposition

- Tailored resume in minutes — matched to the exact job description, optimized for ATS
- Auto-Apply — stop spending nights filling out the same form fifty times
- Realistic mock interviews with a full performance report after every session
- Interview Copilot — real-time suggested answers during the live interview, invisible to the interviewer

Key Differentiators

1. Real-time, not just prep — Interview Copilot works live, during the actual interview, not just in mock practice
 2. One platform, whole funnel — resume → apply → prep → live interview, no juggling four different tools
 3. Undetectable to the interviewer — Copilot only appears on the candidate's own screen
 4. Fast to value — a tailored resume and your first Auto-Apply batch inside 15 minutes of signing up

Who We're Selling To

Primary: The Individual Job Seeker

- Who: Active job seekers — recent grads, career changers, people between roles, people trying to move up
- Pain: Applications go into a black hole, interviews feel like guessing, no time to tailor a resume for every posting
- Goal: Land more interviews, walk into interviews confident, get the offer faster
- What they care about: "Will this actually get me hired," "is it worth $49-79/month," "is this cheating"

Secondary: Coaches & Organizations Buying for Others

- Who: Career coaches, coding/UX bootcamps, university career centers, outplacement/severance programs
- Pain: They're responsible for a cohort's job-search outcomes but can't personally coach interview technique for 30+ people at once
- Goal: Give every person they support a tool that reinforces good interview technique between coaching sessions

- What they care about: Bulk pricing, seat management, whether it complements (not replaces) their own coaching

Sales Process

1. Discovery (10-15 min)

Goal: Understand where they are in the job search and what's actually stuck.

Key Questions (individual):

- Where are you in the search — just starting, or already interviewing?
- What's the biggest bottleneck: not enough interviews, or not converting the interviews you get?
- Have you customized your resume for each application, or sending one version everywhere?
- How many interviews have you had in the last month? How did they go?

Key Questions (coach/organization):

- How many people are you supporting right now?
- What's the gap between your coaching sessions — what do people need help with in between?
- Do you already recommend any tools today?

2. Demo (15-25 min)

Demo Flow:

1. Resume tailoring (5 min) — paste a real job description, show the tailored resume + ATS score
2. Auto-Apply (3 min) — show the match list and one-click apply, with full visibility before anything is submitted
3. Interview Prep (5 min) — run one mock question, show the performance report
4. Interview Copilot — the moment (7 min) — this is the close. Simulate a live interview question and show the suggested answer appear in real time, invisible to the "interviewer"
5. Q&A (5 min)

Demo Tips:

- Use THEIR actual target job title and a real job posting they send you — generic demos don't land
- Let the silence sit after the Copilot suggestion appears on screen — it's the moment that sells itself
- If they ask "is this cheating," answer it head-on before they have to (see Objection Handling)

3. Trial

Structure: 14-day free trial, full feature access, no credit card required. What to tell them to do: Tailor one resume, run at least one Auto-Apply batch, complete one full mock interview before the trial ends — that's usually enough to see real value.

4. Close

Common Objections:

- "It's too expensive" → reframe on cost-per-interview and cost-per-offer, not monthly price
- "I can write my own resume" → it's not about writing, it's about matching the exact keywords an ATS is scanning for, for every single posting
- "Isn't this cheating in the interview?" → answer directly, don't dodge it
- "I already tried [Teal / Kickresume]" → they don't do live, real-time interview coaching — that's the actual gap

- "I need to think about it" → propose the 14-day trial as the "thinking" step, not a separate decision later

Objection Handling (Quick Reference)

"It's too expensive"

"Let's do the math a different way — what's one job worth to you? If Premium helps you land the offer even two weeks sooner, it's already paid for itself many times over. And you can cancel anytime."

"Isn't using AI in an interview cheating?"

"Copilot doesn't put words in your mouth you don't mean — it surfaces the relevant point from your own resume and experience, fast, in the moment nerves make you blank. Most people don't fail interviews because they don't know the answer — they fail because they freeze. This fixes the freeze."

"I already tried [competitor]"

"What was missing?" — nine times out of ten it's that the other tool stopped at resume/prep and never followed them into the actual live interview. That's the one thing only Lightforth does.

"I need to think about it"

"Totally fair. The 14-day trial is free and doesn't need a card — would it make more sense to just try it on your next real application instead of deciding in the abstract?"

Key Metrics to Track

- Trial-to-paid conversion rate
- Time from signup to first tailored resume (target: under 15 minutes)
- Interviews booked per active user (leading indicator of renewal)
- Reported outcome: offer received, tracked via post-offer survey
